Tidao 2024
Bien de Altura - 75 cl.

Tidao is a single-vineyard wine from the north-east of Gran Canaria. The vineyard is located at around 1,100 metres above sea level and is one of Bien de Altura's oldest plots. The vines are approximately 120 years old and remain planted on their own roots.

Vinification
Listán Negro makes up most of the vineyard plantings. Several local red and white grape varieties are also interplanted, including Tintilla, Listán Prieto, Vijariego, Listán Blanco and Malvasía. All the grapes are harvested and fermented together. The soil was formed after an ancient landslide and consists of volcanic breccia. This is a mixture of large volcanic rocks, clay and loam. The rocks gradually break down, allowing the roots to penetrate deep into the soil. Spontaneous fermentation with indigenous yeasts takes place in open-top oak barrels. Maceration lasts for approximately five weeks. After gentle pressing, Tidao matures for around one year in used oak barrels of 228 and 500 litres. The oak remains in the background and mainly supports the wine's structure and spicy character.

Storage potential
Drink as from: 2026
Best moment: 2027-2030
Until: 2036

To serve
Serve slightly chilled, at around 14 to 16 °C. Ideally, allow the wine some time to open up in the glass.

Trial analysis
Tidao shows an open and appealing nose with red berries, red flowers and a fresh touch of mint. This is followed by herbs, a light smoky note and a spicy character reminiscent of red chilli. On the palate, the wine is elegant, juicy and rounded, with ripe red fruit and lively freshness. The spiciness adds extra depth without making the wine austere or rustic. The volcanic influence is gentler here than in the other single-vineyard wines. As a result, the fruit is more expressive and Tidao feels particularly approachable.

Description domain

Bien de Altura is the wine project of winemaker Carmelo Peña Santana on Gran Canaria. From the high-altitude vineyards of San Mateo, he produces fresh, distinctive wines using local grape varieties. Old vines, volcanic soils and the different locations and exposures of the plots play a central role in the estate's style.
